A SCHOOL FOR WELLNESS: TOWARD A CULTURALLY SAFE & RESILIENCE-ENHANCING SCHOOL FOR INDIGENOUS AND NON-NATIVE STUDENTS

February 1 – 2, 2018
Best Western Plus Nor'wester Hotel & Conference Centre
Thunder Bay, Ontario

The classroom is an essential source of learning and social engagement for children and youth. It is also being the location of violence and oppression for the Indigenous community. This workshop will assist educators and school administrators to reclaim the positive history and role of education for indigenous students in their care. In keeping with the Truth and Reconciliation Commission final report we now have an unprecedented opportunity to expand our worldview to include even more than the Euro-American perspective and the result we can offer students is the creation of an enriching, culturally safe and resilience-enhancing environment for all. Utilizing the Four Roots of Resilience the school has the opportunity to become a source of student resilience. "A School for Wellness" offers an approach that will support the school to simultaneously reduce student disengagement, misbehavior, and conflict and to support healthy personal and social development in its students.

Learning Objectives: This two-day workshop will support educators to:

- understand the impact of colonization and ensure that students are not colonized by accident;
- view Indigenous students through a strength-based, culturally respectful lens and create a culturally safe classroom that is inclusive and benefits students from all backgrounds;
- practice a tool to support students' emotional needs while maintaining appropriate classroom/school expectations;
- use culturally congruent tools that enhance the sense of belonging, empowerment and social responsibility of students in the classroom develop their capacity to meaningfully;
- contribute to reconciliation in both the classroom and larger community.
