Lorraine Mischuk
CEO and Managing Clinician
Maximize Human Capabilities
Winnipeg, Manitoba

Lorraine is a registered Occupational Therapist, BrainFX Administrator, and a Certified Work Capacity Evaluator in the Manitoba Province. Lorraine has been operating Maximize Human Capabilities - MHC Ergonomics and Occupational Therapy since 1997. Her overall work and experience spans across an impressive 25 years. During this period, she has worked with people who went through complex multiple trauma experiences and injuries, which in most cases co-occurred with other illnesses. Because of the complexity of such cases, it is common for the people involved to be affected cognitively, psychosocially, as well as physically during these illnesses and injuries. Lorraine's services also include working with individuals who went through various kinds of mishaps such as work injuries, chronic pain, vehicle accidents, anxiety and depression, arthritis, mild brain injury, fibromyalgia, and several other injuries or illnesses. For numerous employers, she carries out early on-site intervention of work related accidents/injuries. Lorraine has also implemented and developed several prevention programs based on employers needs. A few examples of the companies she has worked with include forestry, education, manufacturing, mining, heavy industry, and computer-based organizations.

Day Two: Thursday, September 13

0900 – 1030

What you call a ‘Mental Illness’ I call a Superpower

My awareness of living with a mood disorder began with a diagnosis of post-partum depression after the birth of my first son in 1992. I would come to realize that I lived with a mood disorder my entire life, as had several family members, but stigma issues meant they remained undiagnosed and undiscussed. When my son began experiencing anxiety, I wanted to empower him and limit the impact of stigma on his life. Being comic book geeks, I used the term Superpowers to explain his condition and how he could think about, and effectively live with it. For the first time, I was naming what I had been doing for years, not just to cope, or to manage, but to succeed! This presentation talks about that journey and how we can all be Superheroes of our own mental health - Capes optional!

Sharon Blady, BA, BFA, MA, PhD
Founder/Director
Speak Up: Mental Health Advocates
Winnipeg, Manitoba

Sharon Blady, former Manitoba Minister of Finance, educator specializing in Indigenous and feminist issues, social justice and mental health advocate, and survivor of cancer and domestic abuse, who believes the purpose of her journey is to use the challenges, and opportunities, she has been presented in life, to benefit of others.

Sharon uses the confluence of these experiences to reflect on how each has made her stronger, more empathetic, and how each of us can harness our experiences to grow personally, to assist and empower others, and to build a better and more compassionate world.

Tapping into Your Team’s Superpowers

As a person with lived experience of a mood disorder, an employee, and employer, I am acutely aware of how the quality of our work environment impacts our mental health and productivity, and these things are very much interconnected. When employers, and leaders within an organization, are able to understand the role they play in promoting mental health and well-being, they are better able to support their employees, benefit from their employees’ Superpowers, and build an organizational environment with high levels of productivity and success. This presentation includes workplace supports and resources to help organizations build healthy and productive teams and stigma-free work environments.

| 1315 – 1430 | Managing Marijuana (and other legal drugs) Use in the Workplace Several court cases have ruled that Canadians have a constitutional right under section 7 of the Charter to grow or use marijuana for medicinal purposes. Employers are now attempting to deal with what this means for their workplaces and their employees. This session will provide employers with what they need to know to comply with their Human Rights duty to accommodate obligations and to ensure safe and productive workplaces. Leah Schatz, QC - Partner MLT Aikins Saskatoon, Saskatchewan Leah Schatz practices as a partner with MLT Aikins LLP, exclusively in the area of labour and employment law. She advises on issues related to the workplace, and acts in a variety of roles in collective bargaining, occupational health and safety, and human rights, including representing employers as chief spokesperson during collective bargaining and conducting workplace investigations. She has lectured extensively throughout Saskatchewan and spoken at a variety of national conferences on labour and employment issues affecting workplaces. As counsel, she has appeared before numerous administrative boards and tribunals, including the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board and the Canada Industrial Relations Board, and has also appeared before all levels of the Saskatchewan courts, as well as the Supreme Court of Canada. Leah received her law degree from the University of Saskatchewan in 1993 and was appointed Queen's Counsel in 2016. |

| | |
| 1445 – 1600 | Understanding the Fentanyl Crisis In Our Workplace and Knowing What To Do About It Canada consumes more prescription opioids on a per-capita basis than any other nation, according to a recent United Nations report. The widespread use of prescription opioids is behind the rise of a new class of drug addicts, many of whom are turning to the black market to feed their habit. In British Columbia and Alberta, the two hardest-hit provinces, fatal overdoses linked to Fentanyl have been soaring over the past three years. Fentanyl is an opioid, a class of painkillers that also includes oxycodone and morphine. Prescription-grade Fentanyl is up to 100 times more toxic than morphine. |

This session presents information about how the Fentanyl crisis is impacting the workplace and communities. And we will share information about prevention and intervention strategies that can save lives.
